A new door system is revolutionizing Alberta's residential market. Calgary-based Lux Windows and Glass recently launched the TESORO folding door, enabling homeowners to open interior living areas to the outdoors for a previously unavailable level of style and sophistication.

Lux's General Manager Glen Ambrogiano says interest from architects, designers and homeowners has been tremendous.

"We've had several people in the process of new home design who've experienced TESORO in our showroom and modified their drawings to incorporate the door system. The ability to literally fully open a wall to the outdoors is something buyers are extremely excited about," says Ambrogiano.

Similar products can be found in temperate regions, but up until now nothing was available specifically for Alberta's climactic conditions. Ambrogiano says TESORO reflects Lux's commitment to design and engineering, and it's a great example of how the company responds to market needs with innovative solutions.

"People love the idea of opening their home to the outdoors. Our clients invest a lot to develop stunning indoor and outdoor living environments. With TESORO, they can now transition those spaces seamlessly up to 24 feet, without compromising energy efficiency or appearance."
